Production and characterization of monoclonal antibodies (MAbs) reactive with rat lymphocyte-associated carbohydrates are described. Four MAbs were obtained from hybridomas prepared after immunization with rat lymph node cells depleted of T cells by the panning technique on monomeric high-mannose type glycans-purified by affinity chromatography on concanavalin A-Sepharose. The rat cells used for immunization were obtained from animals that were sensitized for an allograft reaction to skin, heart, or splenocytes. Indirect immunofluorescence studies showed the presence of polysaccharide antigenic determinants that bound each of the MAbs. The reactivity of each MAb was tested by indirect immunofluorescence on rat lymphocytes and granulocytes, by its binding to rat lymphocytes that were free of T-cell contaminants and by its binding to rat surface molecules on thymic lymphocytes, thymic lymphocytes and bone marrow-derived macrophages, and rat mononuclear phagocytes. Binding of the MAbs with the rat lymphocytes was tested in a flow cytometric analysis. The results show that each MAb bound to a different and mutually exclusive carbohydrate-associated antigenic determinant (glyco)located on the surface of rat lymphocytes. This study demonstrates that rat lymphocytes are glycopeptide bearing cells and that each MAb binds to a different cell-surface carbohydrate-associated glycoprotein antigenic determinant. One of the first Western-style buildings here in town, and a particularly fine example of the style. Of course the purist would say it could be called a "Pub," but this is a mainstreamed "Pub", not a hardcore bar. I'm not going to try to make a full scale review of this pub, because I've never really been to any of the western pubs. A few years ago I was also trying to plan a proper pub crawl, and I wasn't able to find the details for a western pub crawl. So my only insight comes from theory. Also, I'm not sure if this is the correct cite for f678ea9f9e
